EU Exit

Government announces extension to acceptance of CE Mark for products placed on GB market

24 August 2021

Related topics

EU Exit

UKCA

Today the Government has announced an extension to the date ending recognition of the CE Mark in Great Britain.

CE Marked goods may now continue to be placed on the GB market until 1st January 2023.

This extension means that all product sectors now have until 1st January 2023 to prepare to use the UKCA Mark, with the exception of Medical Devices. The UKCA Mark can be used now, and the Government is encouraging businesses to start using it as soon as possible, with it becoming mandatory for placing goods on the market in Great Britain from 1st January 2023.

Privacy - Voorwaarden

Help

The Government has confirmed that they remain entirely committed to supporting industry in adapting to the UKCA Mark and will continue to engage actively with industry over the coming 16 months.

The Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS) is hosting a webinar aimed at businesses on Thursday 2nd September at 14.00. This webinar is intended to help businesses understand upcoming changes and the actions they need to take. You can register for this event here.

Information on how to use the UKCA mark can be found on the Government website.

Back to news

Privacy - Voorwaarden